

PREFACE

Praise and gratitude, we send to Allah SWT., who has poured His grace and gift and bestowed me guidance, health, and patience. So that the writing process of my thesis entitled "Project-based Learning in the translating and interpreting Course: Evidence from Indonesian EFL Context" is completed. It is submitted for a Sarjana Pendidikan degree at the English Education Department of the Faculty of Educational Science and Teacher Training, Siliwangi University.

The content of this research includes five chapters; (1) Background of The Study; (2) Literature Review; (3) Methodology; (4) Finding and Discussion; (5) Conclusion and Suggestion. In the background, the researcher discusses the fundamental reason for conducting this study, the gap, formulation of the problem, operational definitions, goal of the study, and significance of the research. In the literature review part, the researcher cited several expert theories and previous research to offer the reader a sense of the investigation. The researcher then continues to explain the methodology used for the study, including its design, data collecting, and data analysis. In the chapter that follows, the researcher further describes the results of the investigation. The final chapter summarizes the study's findings and offers advice to any parties who might be interested in the subject in the future.

This thesis was completed thank you to the many contributions of many people. In the acknowledgment section, the researcher expressed her gratitude. As a result, the researcher wishes to represent them on this occasion, and may Allah SWT respond to their kindness in better ways.
