

PREFACE

English has become an international language that used by so many users around the world. The increase of English users made English used not only by native speaker but also non-native speaker. This is emerge varieties of English. These varieties called World Englishes. Thai English is one of varieties of English that emerge. Thai English is unique because of the unique pronunciation, intonation, and code-mixing. This Thai English's uniqueness made researcher interested to investigate the uniqueness of Thai English. The researcher has enrolled World Englishes course that have been invited graduated student who have been to Thailand to taught English.

This study investigate Student-teachers' perception of Thai English in EFL Classroom. This qualitative case study conducted used semi-structured interview. The participants were two graduated students from English education department in Siliwangi University. They have been taught English in Thailand for around 5 months. The interview conducted in May 11th, 2023 using Whatsapps.

The researcher hopes this research could useful for the reader. This research is far from perfection. The researcher is very open for critics, suggestion, and discussion for this research.

Tasikmalaya, 24th, November, 2023