The research location was carried out in the City of Tasikmalaya. Then, the research method used is a qualitative research method using a case study research approach. The results of this study are expected to describe the problem of fulfilling the political rights of mental disabilities in Tasikmalaya City and how to fulfill the political rights of persons with disabilities, especially persons with mental disabilities in Tasikmalaya City.

The results of research on fulfilling the political rights of persons with mental disabilities in the city of Tasikmalaya show that the KPU as a government institution that carries out state duties in fulfilling the political rights of everyone admits that they have carried out their duties properly. First, the KPU as a government institution has conducted a data collection process for all people including mental disabilities in the city of Tasikmalaya, the second KPU has conducted socialization about elections for all persons with disabilities including mental disabilities. The KPU also emphasized that it had given political rights to persons with disabilities without discriminating. But there were several obstacles that were accepted by KPU members, one of which was when collecting data. Because there are many families who are ashamed to admit that their family members are mentally disabled. But actually the KPU also does not provide much socialization related to mental disabilities, the KPU tends to do more socialization for all people with disabilities, so that there is no special socialization for people with mental disabilities. But according to the author, the KPU is not doing its job optimally. Because there are several families with mental disabilities who claim they do not get detailed information related to the 2019 election. Because according to the family there is no socialization carried out by each village or sub-district. So, according to the author what the KPU does is not optimal.
