

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

All praise belong to Allah subhānahu wata ‘ālā, the Almighty, for His infinite grace, guidance, love, and mercy, which have played an important role in the completion of this thesis, entitled “A Descriptive Study of Pronunciation Difficulties Encountered by EFL Sundanese Language Learners”. The researcher is truly grateful for His blessings that have accompanied this journey. May peace and blessings be upon Prophet Muhammad SAW, whose teachings continue to inspire and direct our lives. Furthermore, the researcher would like to express sincere gratitude to:

1. The Head of the English Education Department, Faculty of Educational Sciences and Teachers’ Training, Siliwangi University, Tasikmalaya,
2. Fera Sulastri, S.Pd., M.Pd., for her exceptional guidance and insightful feedback as my first supervisor,
3. Dea Silvani, S.Pd., M.Pd., for her valuable suggestions and guidance as my second supervisor,
4. All honorable lecturers at the English Education Department, Faculty of Teacher Training and Education, Siliwangi University, Tasikmalaya, for the support and dedication in my academic journey,
5. My beloved family, especially my parents Agus Rustandi and Siti Suhaemah, and my three power brothers, Rangga Prayoga, Argian Arimanda, and Regi Gusti Nugraha for their continuous spiritual, moral, and financial support. Their prayers, encouragement, and everlasting love have been my source of strength,
6. All of my friends, who always faithfully accompany and encourage me in ups and downs,
7. My favorite idol, Iqbaal Dhiafakhri Ramadhan, for all the inspiration and motivation that opened my mind and gave me the energy to keep going,
8. Me, My self, for all your efforts and sacrifices. You have molded me into a stronger and more resilient person,
9. All those who have provided valuable recommendations, feedback and assistance in finalizing this thesis, whether they have contributed directly or indirectly. All the contributions are greatly appreciated.

Finally, the researcher acknowledges that this thesis is far from perfect, therefore the researcher welcomes all suggestions and criticisms for improvement. The researcher also hopes that this thesis can be useful for both the researcher and the readers.
