

PREFACE

This thesis entitled “Analysis of Presuppositions toward Netizens’ Hate Speech in a Social Media Platform” is submitted as a requirement for getting a Sarjana Pendidikan degree at the English Education Department of the Faculty of Educational Sciences and Teachers’ Training Siliwangi University. The study aims to analyze the types of presuppositions embedded in hate speech expressed by netizens on social media, specifically focusing on X. By investigating the assumptions and negative sentiment conveyed in such discourse, this study seeks to contribute to a deeper understanding of the mechanisms and impact of online hate speech.

This study contains (1) background, (2) a Literature Review, (3) Research Methodology, (4) Findings and Discussions, and (5) a Conclusion and Suggestions. The background provides a brief explanation of the purpose and importance of the study. This section also contains gaps, formulation of the problem, research significance, and aims. The literature review briefly discusses presuppositions related to communication and hate speech related to social media and the phenomenon that occurs. Furthermore, the data will be collected and analyzed. The data that has been analyzed will then be interpreted according to the assumptions that arise from the types of presupposition. Last, the conclusion and suggestion section summarizes the key findings of the study, highlighting how presuppositions influence people in interacting both in social and academic life.

Furthermore, the researcher will appreciate any suggestions and feedback from readers of this study. In summary, the researcher expects that this study will be helpful to those who enjoy voicing their opinions, particularly in online settings. In addition, the researcher hopes that this study will help people comprehend presupposition analysis in a new way.