

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The writer would like to express her sincere gratitude to Dr. Ratu Sarah Pujasari and Dr. Melisa Sri, as the thesis advisors, for their continuous guidance, valuable suggestions, encouragement, and patience throughout the process of completing this thesis. Their support and expertise have contributed greatly to the completion of this research.

The writer would also like to express sincere appreciation to all participants who voluntarily participated in this study and shared their time and responses. Without their contribution, this research would not have been successfully completed.

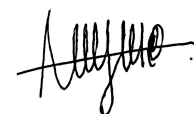

Special gratitude is addressed to Siliwangi University for providing academic support, facilities, and a conducive learning environment during the writer's study and research process.

The writer would also like to dedicate heartfelt thanks to her beloved parents and family for their endless love, prayers, patience, motivation, and unwavering support throughout her academic journey. Their encouragement has always become the writer's greatest source of strength and inspiration.

Finally, the writer would like to thank all lecturers and the academic community who have shared knowledge, inspiration, and valuable experiences throughout the writer's academic journey.

The writer realizes that this thesis is still far from perfect. Therefore, constructive criticism and suggestions are highly appreciated for the improvement of this thesis. Hopefully, this research can provide benefits and contributions to the field of English language teaching and learning, especially in speaking activities through group discussions.
